

Judo Alberta Social Media and Social Networking Policy

A. Introduction

The Alberta Kodokan Black Belt Association (Judo Alberta) recognizes that social media can be used for the organizational purpose to increase communication between and among its members and partners and advance the promotion and positive profile of our sport and athletes to a large audience.

Judo Alberta actively encourages and supports athletes to take part in social media to share their experiences. Athletes are one of our best resources of social media content and act as ambassadors for our organization and our sport. As coaches, officials, staff, Members and Board of Directors, it is also a great opportunity to raise the profile of our athletes and help them connect with fans of the sport.

Judo Alberta also recognizes the importance of online conversation and respects the right to freedom of speech and the use of social media for personal purposes.

Judo Alberta is committed to a sport and work environment that supports responsible and respectful use of social media by its athletes, coaches, officials, volunteers, staff, Members and Board of Directors. All postings made to social media are treated as “public”, comparable to comments or actions in a public forum or in front of a camera or microphone.

This policy describes Judo Alberta’s commitment to using social media responsibly for Athletes, Coaches and Employees that provides the mechanism for our organization to prevent and deal with damaging messages quickly, responsively and effectively.

B. Policy Details

1. Scope

This policy applies to all employees, coaches, athletes, officials, volunteers and Members of Judo Alberta. It applies to online behavior when serving as a representative of Judo Alberta and when participating as a sole individual.

The policy refers to use of a board sweep of online activity including, but not limited to, social, professional and multi-media networks and live-blogging tools. It includes posts, shares and tweets initiated by an individual, as well as re-tweeting or reposting someone else’s comment(s) to one’s social media account.

Organizations and individuals are frequently re-learning that posting something on social media ensures the near-permanent existence of that material. A tweet posted six months ago can be easily found by an intrepid researcher. A picture that is posted on Facebook never really goes away. These reasons underscore why we need to be especially careful about our social media use.

Today, social media is no longer networking sites. You have you have:

- Posted a comment or blog
- Posted a review or rated a product
- Tweeted anything
- Posted a status update on Facebook
- Created a LinkedIn Profile
- Uploaded a video to YouTube or Vimeo
- Shared an image on Flickr
- Shared your location

limited to blogs and social participated in social media if

This policy covers social media messaging and actions that fall within Judo Alberta's organizational jurisdiction and includes, but is not restricted to, protection of individuals, our brand, our sport profile, and relationships with our sponsors and funding partners.

2. Standard of Conduct – Messaging

Judo Alberta endorses a high standard of behavior when using social media and does not condone any message that:

- May contain harassment, discrimination or violence;
- Are hurtful, malicious, degrading or otherwise offensive to an individual or group of individuals;
- Refer to controversial or potentially inflammatory subjects including politics, sex, and religion;
- Are damaging to our brand and/ or relationships with our stakeholders and funding partners;
- Disclose confidential or proprietary information that belongs to Judo Alberta; and/or
- Fail to respect the privacy of others by disclosing personal information without requisite consent.

3. Standard of Conduct – Posting

Only communications staff employed by Judo Alberta, or designate, may post on the official social media sites of the Association unless written permission is given by Judo Alberta.

All official inquiries about Judo Alberta must be answered through the Associations official communication platforms. An individual directly receiving requests from others (e.g., a journalist) regarding issues relevant to Judo Alberta are to contact the communications manager and/or Director of Administration and Communication and/or Executive Director prior to responding and in order to frame an appropriate response, as required.

Messages posted on personal online sites cannot be attributed to Judo Alberta and must not appear to be endorsed by or originated from the Association.

4. Imposing Disciplinary

An individual that uses social media irresponsibly or disrespectfully in a manner that may bring Judo Alberta into disrepute an/or is contrary to the standards of conduct for messaging and posting set above will be subject to discipline. Indiscretions through social media are subject to the same discipline if an individual made similar damaging comments or actions in a public forum or in front of a camera or microphone.

Disciplinary sanctions will reflect the severity of the infraction. Minor infractions are single, largely unintentional breaches of this policy that generally do not result in harm to individuals and/or Judo Alberta. Major infractions are either single breaches of significance or repeated multiple breaches which violate the Associations Code of Conduct and Ethics Policy and that result, or have the potential to result, in harm to individuals and/or Judo Alberta.

Disciplinary sanctions for minor infractions may include the following:

- Immediate removal and retraction of messaging in question;
- Verbal or written reprimands;
- A verbal or written apology; and or
- Any other similar sanction considered appropriate relative to the breach.

Disciplinary sanctions for major infractions correspond to those in the Associations Code of Conduct and Ethics Policy and may include the following:

- Immediate removal and retraction of message in question;
- Formal, written notification of the nature of the violation against the Code of Conduct and Ethics Policy;
- Verbal or written apologies;
- Written reprimand;
- Probation or suspension;
- Monetary fine or payment of costs; and/or
- Any other sanction considered appropriate relative to the seriousness of the breach.

Any individual may appeal the decision and disciplinary sanctions by following the Dispute Resolution and Appeals Policy established by Judo Alberta.

Disciplinary sanctions imposed internally by Judo Alberta do not preclude legal action that may be taken against using social media irresponsibly.

C. Additional Pertinent Information:

The Social Media and Social Networking Policy is meant to cover existing and emerging online tools and network options.

Compliance with this policy could be referenced specifically in Judo Alberta's agreements an/or contracts with athletes, employees, consultants, and Board of Directors.
